—Dr. Peter Hood in the Lancet for May 7th, 1887, makes the announcement that cancer may be cured with carbonate of lime, produced by baking oyster shells in an oven and scraping off the inside white lining. The powder thus produced is sent internally in a bit of tea or water once or twice a day, a dose being as much as will be on a silver quarter. Dr. Hood claims to have relieved a large number of cases by this means. It is worth trying.

—One of our correspondents who has been traveling over the county writes as follows: "As your correspondent has been running from one end of the county to the other, he will favor the readers of the SENTINEL with some of his observations. While he found the corn crop very light, the small grain crop seemed to be over an average, oats ranging from 10 to 60 bushels per acre; wheat from 30 to 50 bushels, and with an enormous acreage, more so than has been in the county for years; and we should judge, even though the corn crop will not be an average, that from the amount of acreage that there will be corn enough in every township to fatten and keep over every hog in it. Threshing the small grain and cutting corn seems to be the order of business on the farm. Pastures, except the wild grass, seems to be entirely worthless to stock."

—While we have reason to grow a little because our crops are cut a little short, we are in clover to what the people in Kansas, Illinois, Iowa and other States. We saw a gentleman from Salina, Kansas, last Saturday and he says that the people are moving out. Cattle are being sold at 1 1/2 cents per pound while land has gone away down. —There are events occurring in every community which if reported in a local paper would create a commotion little dreamed of. What to report and what not to report is what often perplexes the local editor. He is often most unjustly accused of cowardice and favoritism, when all the time he is looking toward the good reputation of the town where his lot is cast. The local editor necessarily almost constantly stands between two fires and which ever way he moves, he is sure to be unjustly accused—that is part of his business.

—Success in business is attributed to many things, among which are, "close application to business," the cash system," "fair dealing," courteous treatment of customers and many other things which we could mention, but without liberal newspaper advertising all these are but oob-bubbles in a hail storm. In our opinion a double quarter column ad will make a man and his business stay longer together in the enjoyment of prosperity than any other scheme that can be adopted. A merchant who will not advertise may get along nicely for some time, but sooner or later he will succumb to the pressure of enterprise and take a sorrowful stroll over the hill to the poor house, or fill a suicide's grave.—Ex.

—Deputy Sheriff Tolson brought down from Atchison county Monday and lodged in jail A. G. Argo, a wealthy stock dealer, living near Rock Port, charged with stealing a couple of mules at a picnic. The arrest of Argo was a shock to the county. For many years he has taken a prominent part in local politics, and was an uncompromising Democrat, stamping the county regularly for the Democratic ticket. Deputy Sheriff Tolson said yesterday that one year ago Argo was regarded as one of the wealthiest, if not the wealthiest man in Atchison county. He was seen by a Herald reporter at the jail yesterday and is an intelligent looking man of about the medium weight, dark complexion, and will weigh about 150 pounds. He has a small, dark mustache. He said: "I had my preliminary trial a few days ago before a justice of the peace. I wanted at that time to waive examination until my witnesses came, and gave my bond. My bond is fixed at 1,000 and I think I will be able to fix it up to-morrow. I am convinced by W. H. R. of Kansas City, and R. Jones of Kansas City, and William Harrington of Winship, that I was in a great City on July 2, the day of which the mules were stolen. A man by the name of Porter owned the mules."—St. Joseph Herald.

—Jesus and the Law. This lesson is a part of the Sermon on the Mount, addressed by Jesus to his disciples, and to the multitudes gathered about him. In our previous study of the "Beatitudes" or the "Blesseds," we found Jesus setting forth the fundamental principles of his kingdom, portraying the character of his people, and announcing their great mission, as the preserving and enlightening force of earth. He now proceeds to state more definitely his nature and mission; and this, at the time, was of supreme importance. Look at the divine authority of the Old Testament. At the New Testament as a fulfillment of the Old. At inward loyalty as the source and essence of outward obedience. At right relation to man essential to right relation to God. At the duty of doing and teaching the whole will of God. At heavenly character as essential for meekness for the heavenly kingdom. At all impiety as well as all party, having its root in the heart. At every account as sure of settlement sooner or later. At the danger of delay in becoming reconciled to God. At the penalties of the hereafter as differing not in durations, but in degrees. Questions. Am I at peace with man? Am I at peace with God?
